TrumpRx is a newly launched federal website intended to help Americans access lower prices on select prescription medications by showcasing discounted cash pay options negotiated directly with pharmaceutical manufacturers. The site is part of a Most Favored Nation (MFN) pricing initiative that aims to align U.S. drug costs with the lowest prices paid in other developed countries.

Because TrumpRx works differently from traditional health insurance, it's worth taking time to understand what the platform offers, its limitations, and when it may or may not be financially advantageous.

What Is TrumpRx?

TrumpRx currently operates much like a prescription drug discount card program. The platform is an informational and referral website and creates custom coupons for some drugs. It does not fill prescriptions, process payments or act as a pharmacy. Instead, it displays discounted prices for a limited set of medications, currently about 40 brand-name drugs, and then directs users to third-party websites to complete their purchase. As the federal government finalizes additional MFN pricing agreements, more medications will be added, and the list of available drugs will expand over time. The website's functionality may also develop over time.

How Does TrumpRx Work?

The five steps below detail how TrumpRx works from the moment you begin using the platform and explain how it can help you access available prescription discounts:

1. Search for your medication. Users can either click "Browse Medications" or type their prescription into the TrumpRx search bar to see if it's included in the program.
2. Review pricing and eligibility. If the medication is listed, the website displays discounted cash-pay pricing and instructions for accessing the offer.
3. Follow the purchase instructions. TrumpRx directs users either to a manufacturer's online ordering site or to a downloadable coupon for use at participating pharmacies.
4. Secure a valid prescription. A prescription from a health care provider is still required. Some medications may need to be filled through specific specialty pharmacies.
5. Complete the purchase outside of insurance. All TrumpRx purchases are cash-pay only. They do not apply to deductibles, out-of-pocket maximums or insurance tracking.

It's important to note that many prices listed on TrumpRx do not require the TrumpRx coupon. For example, some medications, such as the Wegovy pill, are already available at the same cash pay price directly through manufacturers or pharmacies. The prices shown on TrumpRx reflect the government-negotiated MFN pricing. Because MFN pricing is a standardized price floor, it may match or closely resemble prices that consumers can already obtain elsewhere without using a TrumpRx coupon.

Who Might Benefit Most From TrumpRx?

TrumpRx can provide meaningful savings, but the value depends on the individual's insurance coverage and prescription needs. For many people with insurance, their standard copay may still be lower than a cash-pay price. However, certain groups may find the platform particularly helpful.

The following people may benefit from using TrumpRx:

- Uninsured individuals—TrumpRx offers access to discounts without requiring coverage.
- Members of high deductible health plans—Those who haven't met their deductible and may be unlikely to do so may find cash-pay pricing more affordable for specific medications.
- People prescribed medications with limited or no insurance coverage—Some specialty drugs are expensive or excluded from certain plans; TrumpRx may offer a lower out-of-pocket price.
- Individuals seeking specialty treatments that most insurance plans do not cover—Several specialty medications fall outside traditional pharmacy benefits entirely. For example, Gonal-F, a commonly prescribed fertility medication, is frequently excluded from insurance plans. Cash-pay programs like TrumpRx may therefore offer a more affordable price for some patients paying entirely out of pocket.

Who Is Eligible for TrumpRx?

Eligibility for TrumpRx depends on whether a user is simply viewing cash pay prices or attempting to use a manufacturer-sponsored coupon. While the general website is open to everyone, certain high-value offers, such as those for glucagon-like peptide-1 (GLP-1) medications, have stricter requirements.

The following users are eligible to view prices and follow purchase links for all medications:

- Anyone, regardless of age
- Residents of any location
- People with commercial insurance, government insurance or no insurance
- Users who want to compare prices or purchase medications at the listed cash-pay rates

For some medications, the website requires users to meet the following requirements:

- Be 18 years of age or older
- Live in the United States or a U.S. territory (Puerto Rico, Guam, U.S. Virgin Islands, Northern Mariana Islands, American Samoa)
- NOT be enrolled in any government-funded medical or prescription program, such as:
  - Medicare
  - Medicaid
  - Medigap
  - TRICARE
  - Veteran Affairs (VA) or Department of Defense programs
  - Any state or federal assistance program
- Not have both commercial and government coverage (any government coverage makes the user ineligible)
- Agree not to seek insurance reimbursement for purchases made with the coupon
- Agree not to apply coupon-based purchases toward deductibles or out-of-pocket maximums.

What Drugs Are Included?

TrumpRx currently offers discounted pricing on more than 40 high-cost, brand-name medications, including several well-known treatments for chronic conditions, fertility support and weight management. The list will continue to expand as additional manufacturers finalize MFN pricing agreements.

One of the most notable examples is Wegovy, a widely used GLP-1 medication for weight management. Under the MFN pricing, Wegovy becomes significantly more affordable than typical U.S. list prices, with potential savings of $1,000 or more per month, depending on the formulation and dosage. These substantial price reductions represent some of the steepest discounts currently available on the platform and demonstrate the level of savings that may become more common as additional drugs are added over time.

The following are some of the featured TrumpRx medications and their estimated savings, as listed on the website launch:

- Wegovy (oral pill)—Used for chronic weight management in adults with obesity or overweight.

    - TrumpRx price: $149/month
